

Until Every Child is Free from Trafficking

Araminta's Mission

We develop and implement education and prevention strategies and provide clinical and support services to survivors of child sex trafficking in Maryland.

OUR NAME

Our name comes from Harriet Tubman, the American abolitionist and political activist whose birth name was Araminta. Born enslaved in Maryland, Tubman led scores of family members and slaves to freedom as a "conductor" of the Underground Railroad. Inspired by her legacy, we walk alongside and empower survivors as they build new lives for themselves.

Facts+ Stats

Children in Maryland are highly susceptible to trafficking. The intersection of a major seaport, international airports and interstate highways used to transport children, along with the concentration of gambling facilities and a lack of public awareness about trafficking, are among the many reasons why the state is a national hotspot for the enslavement of minors.

- As of 2014 Araminta has provided services to 72 survivors along with their children.
- As of January 2020, we have provided services for 38 survivors plus their children.
- Since our inception, 10 years ago, we have provided training and education to over 800 volunteers.

Araminta's Impact

- We provide education and awareness training to community, school and church groups.
- We provide one-on-one mentoring, individualized care coordination, targeted advocacy, and leadership development.
- We offer Trauma-Informed Therapy for all survivors on our case load.
- We have strategic partnerships that promote comprehensive health and well-being for survivors that currently receive our services.
